We'll Be So Busy!

Math - Students will learn how to multiply with two - digit numbers using estimation, problem solving strategies, and area model.

Social Studies - Students will explain the roles Washington, Morris, Madison, Mason, Franklin, and Hamilton played at the Constitutional Convention. They will also explore the roles Washington took as the first president and some of the outcomes of his term. Students will take the Building a New Nation test on Friday, October 19.

Language Arts - On Monday, students will take the 1st Semester Interim. Students will read fiction stories this week focusing on finding the theme, and identifying synonyms and antonyms. In grammar, students will practice identifying proper nouns. In writing students will continue to work on their mini-magazine project. They will begin to write their informational paragraphs based on the information in their graphic organizers, and finalize their magazine.

Science - Students will continue to observe the properties of water and be able to illustrate the various pathways water can take during the water cycle.
